Martin and Deidre Bobgan (via PsychoHeresy Awareness Ministries / EastGate Publishers) have co-authored numerous books critiquing "Christian psychology," psychotherapy, the integration of secular psychological theories/therapies with Christianity, related counseling movements (including aspects of "biblical counseling"), self-esteem teachings, personality theories, recovery programs, and related practices. They argue these often undermine the sufficiency of Scripture for non-organic problems of living, introduce unbiblical anthropologies and methods, and function as spiritual counterfeits.

They have written roughly two dozen books (some revised/expanded; many available as free full-length PDFs for personal use on psychoheresy.com). Key titles focused on the dangers of Christian psychology and psychotherapy, with available ISBNs (primarily 13-digit where confirmed; some earlier editions differ), include:

Core Foundational Critiques

- The Psychological Way / The Spiritual Way: Are Christianity and Psychotherapy Compatible? (1979, Bethany House; later EastGate reprints)
  Early major work contrasting psychological approaches with biblical/spiritual care; exposes weaknesses of major psychotherapy streams.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717311 (EastGate); related earlier identifiers exist.
- PsychoHeresy: The Psychological Seduction of Christianity (1987; revised & expanded 2012)
  Central work documenting the psychologizing of the church, myths about psychotherapy as science, failures of psychological counseling, anti-Christian biases, and the denial of Scripture's sufficiency.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717236 (ISBN-10: 0941717232).
- The End of "Christian Psychology" (1997)
  Argues there is no distinct "Christian psychology"—it borrows contradictory secular theories/techniques—and challenges the church to reject professional psychotherapy as questionable, detrimental, or a spiritual counterfeit.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717120 (ISBN-10: 0941717127).

Critiques of Specific Teachers, Integrationists, and Movements

- Prophets of PsychoHeresy I (1989)
  Detailed critique of integrationist writings by figures such as Gary Collins, Lawrence Crabb Jr., Paul Meier, and Frank Minirth.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717038 (ISBN-10: 0941717038).

- Prophets of PsychoHeresy II (critiquing James Dobson; 1990; related later title James Dobson's Gospel of Self-Esteem & Psychology)
  Focuses on Dobson's teachings, self-esteem psychology, and related ideas.
  Related ISBN-13: 978-0941717168.
- Larry Crabb's Gospel
  Examines Crabb's counseling and growth teachings through a psychological lens.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717144.
- Against "Biblical Counseling": For the Bible (1994)
  Critiques the biblical counseling movement (as often practiced) for retaining problem-centered methods influenced by psychotherapy and calls for a return to broader biblical ministries and mutual care in the body of Christ.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717090 (ISBN-10: 0941717097).
- Competent to Minister: The Biblical Care of Souls (1996)
  Sequel-oriented work on historical and biblical soul care without psychological or specialized "biblical counseling" frameworks.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717113 (ISBN-10: 0941717119).

Later Works on Counseling Approaches, Mental Illness Framing, and Related Issues

- Christ-Centered Ministry versus Problem-Centered Counseling
  Contrasts problem-centered methods (linked to psychotherapy influences) with Christ-centered ministry.
  ISBN variants around 978-0941717199 / 0941717194.
- Stop Counseling! Start Ministering!
  Advocates abandoning counseling models in favor of biblical ministering.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717229 (related listings).
- Counseling the Hard Cases: A Critical Review (2016)
  Critique of specific biblical counseling case approaches and views of mental illness.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717243.
- Christian Response to Mental Illness: Mutual Care in the Body of Christ
  Addresses framing of "mental illness" and promotes mutual care over professionalized models.
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717281.

- Against Psychotherapy / For the Bible (2024)
  Culminating work emphasizing Scripture over psychotherapy (and critiquing related counseling practices).
  ISBN-13: 978-0941717335 / 978-0941717342 (sources vary slightly by edition/listing).

Related Titles on Specific Psychological or Quasi-Psychological Influences

- 12 Steps to Destruction: Codependency/Recovery Heresies (1991) — Critique of 12-step and recovery teachings. ISBN around 978-0941717054 / 0941717054.
- Four Temperaments, Astrology & Personality Testing — Examines temperament theories and testing. ISBN around 978-0941717070 range.
- Hypnosis: Medical, Scientific or Occultic? — Critique of hypnosis. ISBN around 0941717186 / related.
- Missions & Psychoheresy — Psychological testing and care in missions contexts. ISBN-13: 978-0941717175.
- CRI Guilty of Psychoheresy? — Response to Christian Research Institute positions on psychology.
- TheoPhostic Counseling: Divine Revelation or PsychoHeresy? — Critique of that approach.

Notes:

- Many titles are published by EastGate Publishers (Santa Barbara, CA). Early works appeared with Bethany House, Moody, or Harvest House.
- ISBNs can vary by edition, reprint, or format (paperback is most common); confirm current listings on retailers or the publisher. Some older or specialized titles have limited commercial availability but free PDF versions on the authors' site.
- The Bobgans' position evolved over decades—from early critiques of psychotherapy toward broader opposition to problem-centered counseling formats (including some labeled "biblical") in favor of Christ-centered mutual care, preaching, teaching, and ordinary Christian living grounded in Scripture and the Holy Spirit.
- Their official site (psychoheresy.com) hosts free eBooks of most titles for personal use and provides the most authoritative current catalog.

This list prioritizes works directly profiling dangers of Christian psychology and psychotherapy. For the absolute latest or complete free downloads, check psychoheresy.com